PRISES RALLIED

But the Recoveries Did Not More Than Cover in Part the Serious Declines of Yesterday.

INDUSTRIAL OUTLOOK BETTER

Sentiment Was Somewhat Cheered by Reports of Resumption of Work by Factories.

NEW YORK, February 11.-The news of an uncovered short interest asserted its influence decisively in to-day's stock market and effected a substantial but temporary rally in prices. Re-coveries, though material, did not cover but temporary raily in prices. Recoveries, though material, did not cover more than a part of yesterday's declines, and the force of the demand was decidedly lessened at the higher stages of the rally and seemed exhausted in a final reaction. The market, in fact, became profoundly dull in the latter part of the day, and the volume of the dealings of the day before shrunk to about the average of last week's dull trading.

Sentiment on the industrial entlook was somewhat cheered by quite a variety of reports of resumption of work by factories which have been closed down by reason of the diminished demand for their product.

The holiday to-motrow was an influence towards curtailment of activity in ntocks. A brief selling movement at the end of the day made rapid inroads on the earlier gains and left the day's changes mixed.

Bonds were irregular. Total sales par value $2,228,000.

COTTON MARKETS.

NEW YORK February 11,—The cotton market was quiet to-day, sailes being estimated at 159,000 bales. The close was tready at a net decline of 6414 points. The market opened steady at a cline of 567 points in response to lover Liverpool zables, but became somewhat Irregular, and cild off to a net decline of 19 points on active months under scattered liquidation and local bear pressure, inspired by the continued easiness of the English market, rumors o feasier spots in the South and unfavorable views of the trade situation. From this level the market was railled to within 3 or 4 points of last night's finals by the publication of the National Ginners Atsociation's estimate of 10,581,000 bales ginned to Technor's thi, but weakened again fluring the afternoon, owing to the absence of bull support, bearishness of local sentiment and scattering liquidation. The close was event up from the lowest of the day was called the form the lowest of the day of the carly was generally unchanged. The report of early was generally unchanged. The

HOPE TO BRING

Negroes at Academy Mass-Meeting Plead for Help from White Citizens.

Pausing in the midst of a great speech last night in behalf of the proposed Negro National Museum to be located in Richmond, D. Webster Davis, holding out his hands first to the white people who crowded almost every seat in the lower part of the house, and then to the members of his own race, who leaned over the edges of the galleries, exclaimed: "I want to say to you now that nothing is further from the minds of the sensible negro men and women than this pipe dream of social equality. They could no more conceive of it than they could for damming James River with a spade, or pulling up the Rocky Mountains with a bob-tailed mule."

Continuing, the speaker said that the colored people had long since come to the conclusion that nothing could be accomplished by their race without the aid and sanction of the white people. "The race question," he said, "is capable of solution in the Southland, the common heritage of both the white man and the negro." Conditions, he reminded the members of his race, may be different in the North, but a negro is just as black in Boston as he is in Virginia.

Passing from this, he reviewed the history of the negro in the South, his value as a stiller of the soil and his surpassing faithfulness during the trying days of the war.

In closing his speech Professor Webster made a strong appeal for the aid of the white people in the efforts to bring to Richmond the building and exhibit made by the negroes at the Jamestown Exposition.

Their object is to place in the capital of the Confederacy this building and its contents as a monument to what the negro can do in his native land, and as an incentive toward greater things in the future.

The meeting was presided over by Glies Jackson, who spoke in his inimitable fashion, which is always greeted with applause. He said that one of the first things he ever learned was to "stand in" with the "white folks," and that it had stood him in good stead. In its twenty years' practice of law in the city, he told them, he had made $300,000 by their co-operation, a small amount of which was still in his possession. He said that polities was the root of evil; that in reconstruction times he dared nut address a white audience, and that incidentally he walked and had no soles on his shoes, but that now since politics had been eliminated, the "white folks" applaud his oratorical efforts, and in consequence, he wears good shoes and rides in a buggy.

Shortly before the close of the meeting, cards were passed around on which the audience could write subscriptions, and there were liberal responses.
